

Lighthorne Gravestones Survey, 2011- 2018
by members of the Lighthorne History Society with revisions (2023)

Introduction

Local historian, the Rev Harvey Bloom, carried out a visual inspection of the graveyard monuments in the early 20th century. The original record is housed at the Shakespeare Birthplace Record Office, Stratford on Avon, under reference DR41/16. Although he recorded names and dates engraved on tombstones, he did not record the verbatim inscriptions and some of his interpretations are suspect.

The Birmingham & Midland Society for Genealogy & Heraldry recorded the memorials in the church and graveyard in 1985 and they incorporated a transcript of Bloom's survey at the back of their report and added an index. A copy is available in the archive of the Lighthorne History Society under reference LH150. Some of the BMSGH recordings are inaccurate.

At an unknown date a lot of the gravestones were laid horizontal, presumably to assist with graveyard maintenance and subsequently the tombstones have been covered with moss and soil and tree sheddings. Between 2011 and 2018 members of the Lighthorne History Society, under the leadership of Colin Such, exposed the hidden gravestones and read and transcribed the inscriptions.

The only known plan showing grave positions was that recorded by Butler Sherborn of Burford, circa 1997, using GPS equipment, to a scale of 1:100 (LH150.1). This plan was found to be inaccurate and misleading so the Society decided to prepare a series of sketch maps on which the graves were located using primitive triangulation techniques. Despite the limitations of the technique employed it is possible to locate specific graves from the plans, reference LH148.1(E) to LH148.6(E).

Memorials created post 2011 are not necessarily recorded, nor will be any gravestones uncovered post 2011.

Digital photographs of the memorials, where indicated in the table, are available in the archive of the society, We will be pleased to send a scan of the memorial on application. Please use the contact form, quoting the LHS grave number.
